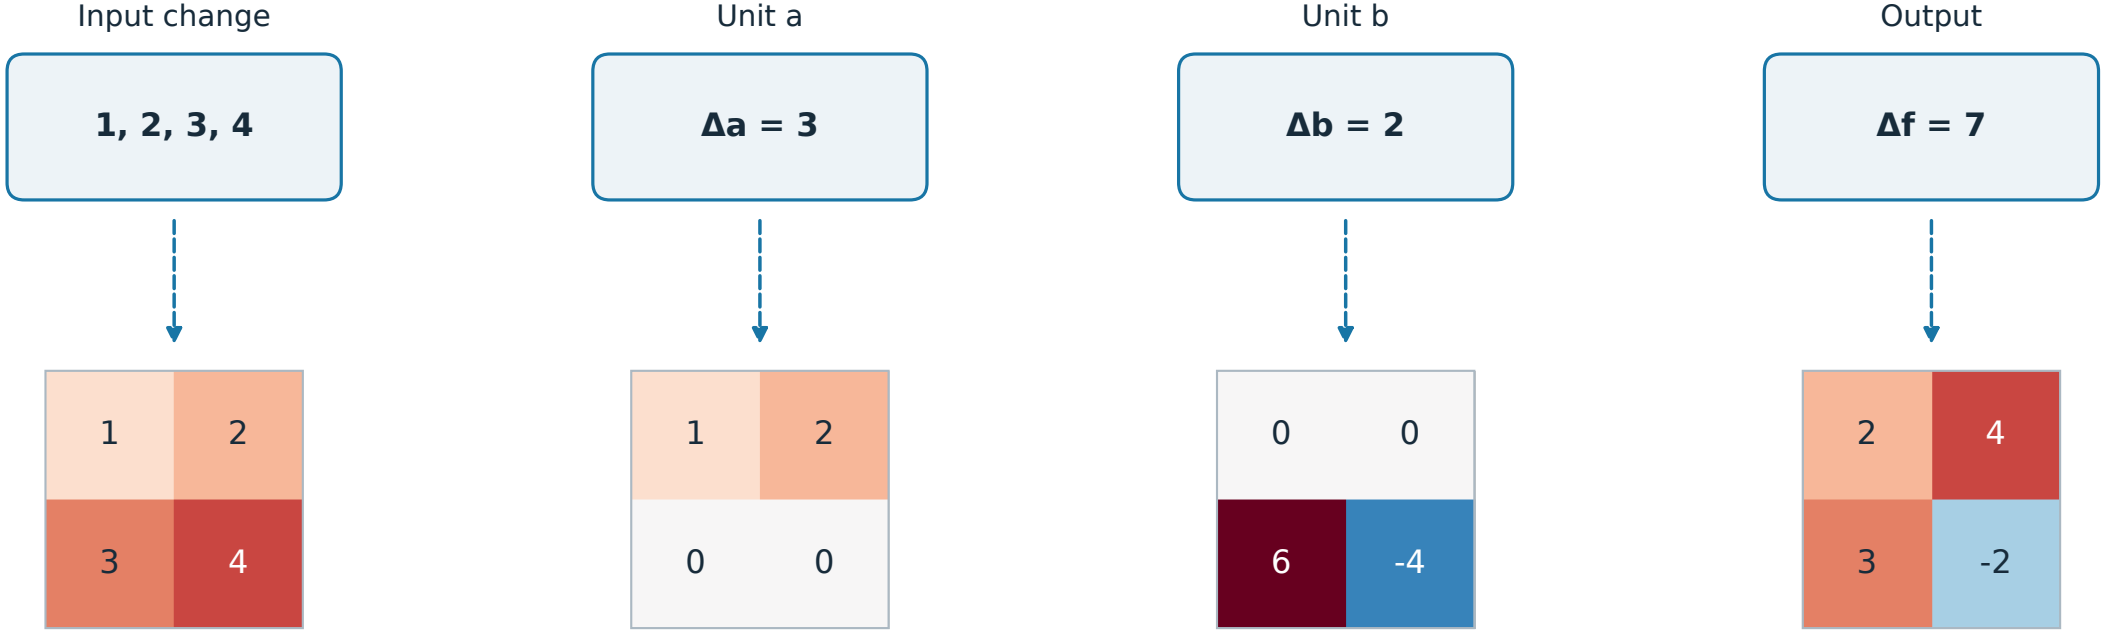
One internal component, one input-space image

The network contains values. The scanner attaches an image to each selected component.



Each image uses the same four input locations. Example values are illustrative.